Lapwings

screenprint by Jane Smith s.w.l.a

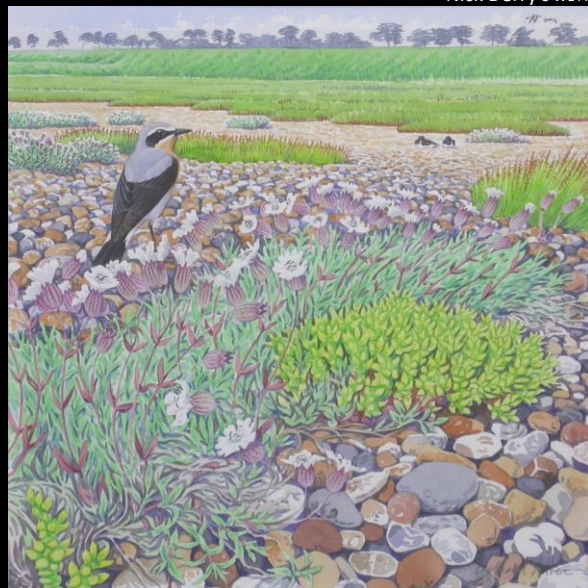

After the driven snow of late winter, an exhibition hot on its heels celebrating the burgeoning of spring and the re-appearance of familiar avian friends, should be just the tonic we all need.

Chiffchaffs in the willows, wheatears on the coast, garganey in the dykes, willow warblers in the blackthorn blossom, and the tumbling display of territorial lapwings over the grazing marshes echoing to the sound of singing redshanks, should all be happening around us in North Norfolk at the same time as being celebrated by a host of truly talented artists at BIRDscapes.
